

Contents

Preface	xi
Mentoring New Teachers: A Position of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics	xiii
Introduction	1
Elizabeth Murray, Navajo Elementary School, Albuquerque, New Mexico
Section 1: Why Mentoring Is Important	3
Mentoring Mathematics Teachers in the Twenty-first Century	4
Shonda Lemons-Smith, Georgia State University, Atlanta, Georgia
Mentoring Teachers in Standards-Based Mathematics Education: A Visual Framework	4
Eula Ewing Monroe, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah
Learning from Mentors as a Beginning and Experienced Teacher	7
Shonda Lemons-Smith, Georgia State University, Atlanta, Georgia
Lisa Matthews, Georgia State University, Atlanta, Georgia
Section 2: Who a Mentor Is	9
Will You Be My Mentor?	10
Gwen Carnes, Emporia State University, Emporia, Kansas
Five Essential Responsibilities of an Effective Mentor	10
Jeremy Winters, Middle Tennessee State University, Murfreesboro, Tennessee
Jason D. Johnson, Middle Tennessee State University, Murfreesboro, Tennessee
Transitioning from Protégé to Mentor	11
Jennifer Drinkwater, Wareham Middle School, Wareham, Massachusetts
To My Once and Forever Master Mentor	12
William D. Jamski, Indiana University Southeast, New Albany, Indiana
Who Should Be a Mentor?	13
Andrzej Sokolowski, Cypress Ridge High School, Houston, Texas
Having Influence versus Having Power	13
Joseph Zilliox, University of Hawaii, Honolulu, Hawaii
A. J. Dawson, Pacific Resource for Education and Learning, Honolulu, Hawaii
Section 3: What a Mentor Does	15
The Five-Star Mentor: A First-Class Guide to Teaching	16
Emily Peterek, University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida

Adding to the Repertoire: How Mentors View Their Roles.....	17
Nancy Terman, University of California—Santa Barbara, Santa Barbara, California
Nancy O’Rode, California State University—Northridge, Northridge, California
Maria Guzman, Oxnard High School, Oxnard, California
Mentoring at Any Age Is Important	18
Ann M. Perry, St. Joseph’s Academy, St. Louis, Missouri
Differentiated Coaching	18
Tony Hecimovic, Montana State University, Billings, Montana
Lisa Scott, Billings Public Schools, Billings, Montana
David Davison, Montana State University, Billings, Montana
Nina Miller, Billings Public Schools, Billings, Montana
Using Mentors to Ensure Successful Implementation of New Mathematics Curricula.....	19
Carmen S. Brown, State University of New York at Buffalo, Buffalo, New York
“Aiding and Abetting” Teachers of Mathematics	20
Thomasenia Lott Adams, University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida
“I Don’t Need to Have All the Answers”	20
Nancy O’Rode, California State University—Northridge, Northridge, California
So What Do You Want from Me?.....	21
Mary Belisle, Greely Middle School, Cumberland, Maine
My Mentors: Qualities That Made Them Special.....	21
Ann M. Perry, St. Joseph’s Academy, St. Louis, Missouri
The Mentor as a “Fellow Worker”	22
Len Sparrow, Curtin University of Technology, Perth, Australia
Sandra Frid, Curtin University of Technology, Perth, Australia
The Human Side of Mentoring	23
Shonda Lemons-Smith, Georgia State University, Atlanta, Georgia
Lisa Matthews, Georgia State University, Atlanta, Georgia
Section 4: Tools for Mentors.....	25
Promoting Mentoring of Silenced Voices	26
Yolanda De La Cruz, Arizona State University, Phoenix, Arizona
Developing Effective Mentoring Skills of Mathematics Coaches	26
Phyllis Whitin, Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan
David Whitin, Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan
Observing a Protégé	28
Jason D. Johnson, Middle Tennessee State University, Murfreesboro, Tennessee
Collaborative Cycle: A Mentoring Tool for Changing Practice	29
Tanya Vik Blais, Encinitas Union School District, San Diego, California
Sharon Moore, Encinitas Union School District, San Diego, California
Nadine Bezuk, San Diego State University, San Diego, California
Jane D. Gawronski, San Diego State University, San Diego, California

Using Videotaping and Stimulated Recall to Reflect on Teaching	31
Patricia A. Emmons, Lyme, Connecticut
Mentoring through Cognitive Coaching	32
Deandrea L. Murrey, California State University—Dominguez Hills, Carson, California
Squishy Squares, Cones with Three Faces, and Triangles with Noncongruent Sides: Addressing Experienced Teachers' Tenuous Understandings of Mathematics	33
—Tutita M. Casa, University of Connecticut, Storrs, Connecticut
Talking about Teaching: A Strategy for Engaging Teachers in Conversations about Their Practice	35
Margaret Smith, University of Pittsburgh, Gibsonia, Pennsylvania
Promoting Equity in the Mathematics Classroom	37
Nancy Terman, University of California—Santa Barbara, Santa Barbara, California
Nancy O'Rode, California State University—Northridge, Northridge, California
Maria Guzman, Oxnard High School, Oxnard, California
Section 5: Collaboration as Mentoring	39
Mentors as Learners: A Practice-Based Approach to Mentoring	40
Ginger Rhodes, University of North Carolina at Wilmington
Patricia Wilson, University of Georgia, Athens, Georgia
A Tale of Two Mentors	41
Sarah Wallus Hancock, Maplewood Richmond Heights Elementary School, Richmond Heights, Missouri
Cheryl Ann Lubinski, Illinois State University, Normal, Illinois
Collegial Mentoring	42
Jennifer Wyatt, Toronto District School Board, Toronto, Ontario
A Sisterhood of Mathematics Teachers	43
Shirley M. Matteson, Palo Alto Middle School, Killeen, Texas
Nancy Box, Palo Alto Middle School, Killeen, Texas
Cate Hartzell, Palo Alto Middle School, Killeen, Texas
Roxanne Howell, Palo Alto Middle School, Killeen, Texas
Collegial Mentoring through Lesson Study	44
Susan Mulligan-Hirsch, Kawana Elementary School, Santa Rosa, California
Team Mentoring: Cooperation and Success without Consternation	45
Danté A. Tawfeeq, Adelphi University, Garden City, New York
Section 6: Ideas for Mentoring Programs	47
Criteria for Teacher Induction, Mentoring, and Professional Development Programs	48
Sharon A. Kortman, Arizona State University, Tempe, Arizona
Forming a Cadre of Mathematics Mentors	49
Alfinio Flores, University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware
Cheryl A. Thomas, Arizona State University, Tempe, Arizona

Learning Never Ends: Meeting Mentors' Professional Development Needs	50
Heather A. Martindill, Mid-continent Research for Education and Learning, Denver, Colorado
Peer Mentoring: The Art of Changing a School's Instructional Focus	53
Bob M. Drake, University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio
Content-Based Mentoring	54
Sharon A. Kortman, Arizona State University, Tempe, Arizona
Mentoring for High-Quality Instruction Using Adult Learning Theory: Lessons from Research and Practice	55
Thomas J. Starmack, Bloomsburg University, Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania
Developing a Culture of Mentoring: Mentor-Protégé Program, Professional Academies, and the Response-to-Intervention (RtI) Model	57
Edna Bazik, National-Louis University, Lisle, Illinois Jeana Considine, Community Consolidated School District 181, Westmont, Illinois Lori Gehrke, Community Consolidated School District 181, Westmont, Illinois
Collaborative Mentoring: Establishing a Mathematics Teaching and Learning Community through Lesson Study	58
Jennifer Suh, George Mason University, Fairfax, Virginia Spencer Jamieson, Fairfax County Public School, Fairfax, Virginia
Mentoring High School Teachers to Teach Elementary School Mathematics Content to English-Language Learners	60
Susana Davidenko, State University of New York College at Cortland, Jamesville, New York Alfredo Gómez, Fowler High School, Syracuse City School District, Syracuse, New York
Challenges and Resolutions for Mentoring Teachers of Mathematics	60
Sharon A. Kortman, Arizona State University, Tempe, Arizona
Section 7: Lessons Learned	63
Mentoring the Experienced Teacher	64
Anthony Fernandes, University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona
Capitalizing on Differences of Opinion	65
Randall E. Groth, Salisbury University, Salisbury, Maryland
A Mathematics Mentor's Story	66
Melissa C. Gilbert, Oakland Schools, Santa Clara, California
Challenges and Suggestions for Cross-Cultural Mentors	67
Fatma Aslan-Tutak, University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida Adem Ekmekci, University of Texas at Austin, Austin, Texas
Networking Our Way Out of Isolation: Mentoring in Rural Areas	68
Linda Hutchison, University of Wyoming, Laramie, Wyoming Judith Ellsworth, University of Wyoming, Laramie, Wyoming

Building an Open Relationship: A Mentoring Vignette from Both Perspectives	69
Michael E. Matthews, University of Nebraska, Omaha, Nebraska
Nicole I. Guarino, University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa
Three Lessons about Mentoring from the REvitalizing ALgebra Program	70
Eric Hsu, San Francisco State University, San Francisco, California
Kentaro Iwasaki, Mission High School, San Francisco, California
Judy Kysh, San Francisco State University, San Francisco, California
Katherine Ramage, Kara Associates, San Francisco, California
Diane Resek, San Francisco State University, San Francisco, California	