00:50:07 Elisa Waingort: Humanizing language to talk about math. Yes, please.
00:50:07 Natalie Davis-Waller: #educolor has been a gift
00:50:08 Stephanie Bell: We belong
00:50:12 Breedeen Pickford-Murray: And our students belong too. <3
00:50:14 April Thompson: Thank you.
00:50:16 Wendy Menard: Math (and everything that goes on in school) is NOT neutral!
00:50:17 Shelly Jones: Yes! We teach students!
00:50:18 Linda Smith: True education equity is the reparation our black and brown students deserve now for all the wrongs and barriers they have suffered.

00:50:39 Nicole Bridge: As we think about how to support everyone feeling like they belong, we (particularly white teachers and gatekeeping systems and institutions) must also think about the role that we play in creating division and exclusion.

00:50:49 Sara Rezvi: That @Nicole

00:50:53 Sara Rezvi: <3

00:50:55 Jennifer Hagman: Yes!!

00:51:05 Rebecca Mitchell: Yes..the area under the curves are PEOPLE.

00:51:06 Karen Campe: 2

00:51:07 Breedeen Pickford-Murray: who are the people represented in the graph?

00:51:11 Rebecca Mitchell: and inequities

00:51:12 Ashleigh Walton: As a 2nd year special ed teacher...it is hard to feel like I belong in the math world

00:51:17 Karen Campe: @Nicole Bridge YES!

00:51:19 Elisa Waingort: Absolutely! No one is expendable.

00:51:19 Shasta Hankins: Yes! we teach students but the students also teach us.

00:51:26 martyanne konig: YOU BROKE MY HEART!

00:51:35 Stacey Hatchett: @Nicole. You are right, but what happens when you start the conversation?

00:51:35 Sara Rezvi: @ashleigh you belong. You are here. You are welcome

00:51:41 Johnetta Vaughan: The media does not show the difference of the curve compared to people of color :-)

00:51:46 April Thompson: Yes, why is the line so low?!

00:51:47 Faith Peddie: Do you have a specific question Stephanie?

00:51:47 John Staley: what areas of the state, country does this graph fit?

00:51:52 Thomasenia Adams: Asking the right questions make a difference!

00:52:09 Joslyn Richardson: We should strive to Ask better questions. ABSOLUTELY.

00:52:17 Alicia: This right here! Humanize these statistics and what it means for our communities! And what part institutions, systems and policy play....

00:52:24 Barb Everhart: it's about justice!

00:52:25 Elisa Waingort: Exactly. The system is racist. It's about justice.

00:52:29 Carol Johnson: Yes it IS about justice.

00:52:33 Nicole Bridge: @Stacey We need to start that conversation within ourselves - "What role do I play?" And then we need to take it to our bigger institutions. And we need to "Ask better questions" per Jose

00:52:34 Imani Goffney: Yes- what questions can we ask? How might math help us find better answers, especially for the people most vulnerable?

00:52:34 Sheila Hyman-Reynolds: You are so right!!! You are speaking the truth, Mr. Jose!

00:52:50 John Staley: Using math to investigate systems

00:52:56 Carla Bidwell: Thank you for including the LGBTQ+ community in asking the right questions. Many are suffering.

00:53:10 Breedeen Pickford-Murray: Plenty of un-just projects out there...

00:53:10 Faith Peddie: Do you have a specific question Martyanne?
00:53:11 Elisa Waingort: Yes! We need to ask better questions.
00:53:27 Joe Herbert: Yup Bree
00:53:31 Linda Smith: yes Jose! Many of our systems, such as testing, setting math pathways by student test scores, ability grouping, gifted programs, are inherently racist.
00:53:37 Sarah Streitz: Whose voices are invited to the conversation in our classroom?
00:53:43 Brittany Marshall: Pedagogy is the vibe!!!
00:53:43 Jennifer White: That vibe <3
00:53:51 Nicole Bridge: @Stacey We also need to be prepared that systems and institutions and whiteness are designed to preserve themselves. They will push back. But we need to be prepared for the uncomfortable conversations. And we need to work in community (per Marian)
00:54:03 John Staley: importance of SJ as a pedagogy... not an event, a lesson
00:54:05 Mike Thayer: Rushing students to calculus isn't where the better questions will come from. Giving students that genuine and deep exposure to statistics is where we can best connect to the issues we need to address.
00:54:08 Crystal Watson: Social Justice is a VIBE!! Aye I felt that in my soul!
00:54:10 Shelly Jones: Yes! The vibe!!!! The care. The understanding. Yes!
00:54:11 Breedeen Pickford-Murray: I'm coming back to Marian's "knowing the why" in the context of pedagogy, projects, etc
00:54:15 Maggie Mariella: Your Vibe! YES!
00:54:17 Julie Wright: Nicole, yes; and some of our also-beloved white students may push back in ways we wish they didn't
00:54:25 MONICA TIENDA: I need a VIBE shirt
00:54:26 Joyce Greenberg: All children/students feel respected and welcome, they feel safe to explore learn and make mistakes
00:54:34 Sara Rezvi: Yes to critical consciousness, yes to Freirian liberation practices, yes to all of this
00:54:35 Barb Everhart: VIBE!
00:54:39 Stacey Hatchett: @ Nicole Definitely. I've seen the push back and then people give up.
00:54:44 Janelle O'Neill: @Mike_Thayer AGREE!!!!
00:54:48 Toya Frank: Teaching math with critical consciousness - absolutely!
00:54:50 Sara Rezvi: I was feeling super down earlier today about my dissertation work and this talk is giving me healing energy
00:54:57 Sara Rezvi: Thank you Jose and Marian 00:55:08 Dan Battey: So glad you're focused on critical consciousness! That is forgotten way to often in CRP.
00:55:10 Joy Barnes-Johnson: Math is NEVER neutral.
00:55:16 Joyce Greenberg: oh yes!!!
00:55:16 Linda Smith: Great bullet points Jose.
00:55:19 Toya Frank: @Dan - exactly
00:55:24 Barb Everhart: critical consciousness
00:55:27 Joslyn Richardson: YES To everything on this slide!!!
00:55:33 Dana Miller-Cotto: YES!!

00:55:38 Alicia: Yes- giving credit where credit is due
00:55:40 Thomasenia Adams: Yep, we went remote really fast!
00:55:44 MONICA TIENDA: to be "neutral" is to side with the oppressor
00:55:52 John Staley: dropping deep knowledge
00:55:58 Judith Noneman: meaningful is essential
00:55:58 Linda Smith: Remove the deficit language - not gaps, but learning opportunities.
00:55:59 Barb Everhart: same @sararezvi ! so glad you are here!
00:55:59 Natalie Davis-Waller: All of this!
00:56:04 Melynee Naegle: So very tired of the bombardment of the quick fix programs! Please make it stop!
00:56:08 Adriene Marshall: Reputable programs follow strict privacy guidelines
00:56:13 Carol Matsumoto: Thank you Mariann and Jose for energizing me! Thank you and Christine Chonda
00:56:19 Kirstin Milks: And we have to teach science students that math is how we know the world!
00:56:21 Stacey Hatchett: @ Melynee Yes!!
00:56:27 Diane Anderson: all of this
00:56:31 Thomasenia Adams: @TheJLV, say it and say it loud!
00:56:32 Cindy Bryant: Teachers of mathematics are the PR team for mathematics!
00:56:35 Breedeen Pickford-Murray: We have to work a lot harder right now to hear students' voices.
00:56:41 Maria Zavala: Math is not neutral. It's also not universal in the way that people like to use the word universal, whose math gets privileged when we describe it that way.
00:56:50 Barb Everhart: yes! critical consciousness with student voice
00:56:50 Dr. LaToya Leavy: Good point...student voice is not teacher voice
00:56:54 Elisa Waingort: Some educators only want student voice to sound like them. Yeah, no. We don't want that.
00:57:07 Jennifer Hagman: WOW !!
00:57:10 Nicole Bridge: "Wanting student voice, even when it does not sound like ours." POWER in that statement and a lot to interrogate within myself around that 00:57:17 Lori Walton: that..
00:57:20 Abby Roza: Yes. Systems.
00:57:20 Alison Pepero: These are great graphics
00:57:21 nicole Brazile: that's public school today
00:57:21 Jenny Cheng: snap, snap, snap
00:57:22 Mike Thayer: I haven't thought this fully through but I wonder if: "math is neutral" if and only if society is equitable and just 00:57:22 Cindy Bryant: Very telling visuals!
00:57:24 Katrice Quitter: THIS!
00:57:25 April Thompson: Nailed it.
00:57:26 Andy Mitchell: And the very poor are buried under those boxes
00:57:28 Elisa Waingort: Disaster capitalism is alive and well.
00:57:30 Rose Kendrick: That's deep!!
00:57:30 Maria Zavala: *banging on my desk in agreement!

00:57:31 Joyce Greenberg: Yes capitalism leaves so many behind
00:57:33 Cathy Cox: These graphics are awesome
00:57:43 Mollie McDermott: Wow that visual is crazy... capitalism out of control
00:57:43 Sheila Hyman-Reynolds: WOW!!!
00:57:47 Jacquelyn Kennedy: @nicole DONE! BOOM! My target take away!
00:57:56 Elyssa Miller: That graphic is everything.
00:57:59 Johnetta Vaughan: This picture keeps changing and it's based on the perspective of the interpreter
00:58:00 Clarissa Rothe: That image is so powerful!
00:58:03 MONICA TIENDA: CLICK BOOM!!
00:58:10 Cindy Cliche: Pressing my thinking today! Thank you!
00:58:11 Dr. Brown: That was powerful!
00:58:24 Thomasenia Adams: Make it real!
00:58:55 Samara Booker: SIR!! COME THROUGH!!!
00:59:05 Denise Huddlestun: Image with capitalism is powerful! We have to do better!
00:59:09 Nicole Bridge: YUP!
00:59:18 Barb Everhart: it's new...or new to you...
00:59:20 Linda Smith: Math is a way, not a wall - great quote from work being done in the Launch Years project from @utdanacenter. Also great work from @unbounded and @justequations.
00:59:23 Emily Kavanagh: Yes!!!!
00:59:23 April Thompson: They revealed! We have BEEN talking about it.
Falling on deaf ears!
00:59:28 martyanne konig: Justice is is a multiliview situation
00:59:30 Diane Anderson: that was powerful
00:59:36 Stacey Hatchett: @JLV say that!!
00:59:45 Joyce Greenberg: we have to meet each child where they are 00:59:45 Shasta Hankins: Yes this a so true.
00:59:50 Alison Pepero: This is moving!!
00:59:52 Maria Zavala: We knew too too well. We just didn't care enough to do anything about it. We could live with it, we decided as a society.
00:59:54 martyanne konig: You broke me
00:59:56 Jolene Peterson: N O W
00:59:57 Kirstin Milks: yes
01:00:00 Myra Garcia: now
01:00:04 Karin Lange: I'm IN
01:00:07 Elizabeth Collier: today
01:00:09 Elisa Waingort: NOW is the time.
01:00:09 John Staley: now
01:00:10 Alison Pepero: I'm already in!
01:00:12 Natalie Davis-Waller: Yes. Reacting to this disaster has looked like an attempt to move mountains in the course of a month that we've been aware of for years!
01:00:12 Barb Everhart: I'm in!
01:00:12 Maggie Mariella: NOW!
01:00:13 Colleen Carman: Great call for action!
01:00:15 Diane Anderson: now
01:00:16 Faith Peddie: Melissa, do you have a specific question?

01:00:16 Johnetta Vaughan: I really have to be more bold about addressing that!

01:00:23 Thomasenia Adams: Risk!

01:00:28 Maurice Ragsdale: Very thoughtful! Thanks!

01:00:28 martyanne konig: are that many jerks?

01:00:28 Barb Everhart: that's right! what are you willing to risk/give up for change?!

01:00:30 Mollie McDermott: I'm in!

01:00:30 THEOPHILUS OKOCHA: Now!

01:00:37 Dave Hankin: Been there!!!!

01:00:38 Maggie Mariella: Change agent.

01:00:38 Shelby Strong: RISK!!!

01:00:40 Faith Peddie: Do you have a specific question, Martyanne?

01:00:49 Carol Johnson: PROFESSIONAL RISK ie real!

01:00:53 Adriene Marshall: I've been in for a long time.

01:00:55 Faith Peddie: Do you have a specific question Jayne?

01:00:55 Linda Smith: In my last position,

01:01:00 Sarah Streitz: And vulnerability when we truly listen to our speakers speak

01:01:05 Breedeen Pickford-Murray: Risk and loss. Important to be willing to put yourself out there. It isn't inherently safe.

01:01:06 Kim Lacelle: What will you listen for? This is so important.

01:01:06 Thomasenia Adams: Man, oh, man! This is nothing but truth!

01:01:08 Lorie Huff: I have to start speaking up and listening NOW!

01:01:12 John Golden: You are speaking to and from the heart. Thank you!

01:01:13 Jacquelyn Kennedy: THANK YOU! So good!

01:01:17 Lara elzroui: I attended the two webinars before and i got the certificate none of them have my name on. How can i get the credit for this webinar?

01:01:17 Brittany Marshall: Phenomenal!!!

01:01:18 Esther Song: Thank you Marian & Jose!!

01:01:21 Sharon Black-MacKinnon: Thank you so much!

01:01:59 Brett Parker: Yes Hema!
01:02:01 Nicolette Nalu: There are too many times that funds of knowledge from many of our Ss are not given the chance to be seen in a positive light. They CAN Do mathematics. Make the mathematics accessible for ALL. #TODOS
01:02:03 Beth Kobett: Incredible! So powerful - call to action!
01:02:07 Lori Walton: Hema <3
01:02:07 martyanne konig: Another risk. Being a white girl in the the neighborhood. Ya give those directions
01:02:10 Maricela Mesarina: @Jose, i'm here from Chicago. great presentation!
01:02:24 Sara Rezvi: Holler to all the Chicago folks
01:02:27 Kerrie Becker: Thank you, Jose, for emphasizing that we teach students math! I really appreciate your passion!
01:02:32 Barb Everhart: they are being used for clapping
01:02:49 Diane Anderson: respect
01:02:56 Brett Parker: Thank you Marian and Jose for being you!
01:03:04 Nicole Bridge: Hi Sara!!
01:03:13 Lori Walton: Hi Sara!

01:03:25 Esther Song: Hi Sara! Chicagoooo represent
01:03:29 Barb Everhart: SARA!!!!
01:03:33 Deepa Bharath: yes!! pandemic as a portal by arundhati was amazing!
01:03:33 Joe Herbert: Yes Sara!
01:03:36 Karen Campe: That piece by Arandhiti Roy was wonderful ...
Financial times
01:03:37 Emily Kavanagh: Hi Sara
01:03:45 Maren McMartin: Genius
01:03:51 Christina Tully: Such a great point!
01:03:52 Antonia Adams: Ah yes! If anyone is interested in that, it's here:
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QmQLTnK4QTA>
01:03:54 Barb Everhart: Go SARA!!!!
01:03:55 Dana Miller-Cotto: YES!
01:03:57 Maggie Mariella: YES MIc Drop!
01:03:58 stephenia courtney: It perpetuates the problem
01:03:58 Cathery Yeh: Yes Sara!!!

01:04:00 Nicole Bridge: YES!
01:04:02 Diane Anderson: good point
01:04:02 Maria Zavala: I'm reflecting on that: portal or hole. Amazing.
01:04:04 Tracey Sweeney: What can we do Sara to stop it?
01:04:05 Nicolette Nalu: PERFECTLY stated Sara!!
01:04:05 Mary Dugas: gener,race,age,
01:04:08 Penina kamina: A chance has come up to rise up and not squander it
01:04:10 Angelica Johnson: Yes
01:04:15 Kristin Messenger: Well said Sara
01:04:30 Jose Vilson: If you haven't peeped, Arundhati Roy and Imani Perry had a conversation through Haymarket Books. It was dope!
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QmQLTnK4QTA>
01:04:34 Min Pai: "a portal"...YES Sara
01:04:37 Maria Zavala: Hi, Imani!
01:04:38 Liz Curtis: Yes! Concrete!
01:04:39 Sara Rezvi: That's the talk!!
01:04:41 Sara Rezvi: Hi Imani!!
01:04:44 Esther Song: Hi Imani!!
01:04:45 bonnie manzon: where is math taking us?
01:04:45 Stacey Hatchett: @ Sara Well said
01:05:07 Deb Stetson: Building on Sara Rezvi, this is a chance for folks that haven't seen before, to really see what is happening. Who has access? What are the options for how we are hearing from students?
01:05:08 Judith Noneman: Follow the student... what do they individually need? Call, text, video conference
01:05:09 JAcky Rodes: asynchronous learning has been implemented in my district
01:05:09 Rachel White: Great question Imani
01:05:42 Cecelia Daniels: I recommend the book, "All Things Being Equal" by John Mighton
01:05:53 Tracey Sweeney: I refused to change students grades from the last day on our in-person class, since some students have more learning opportunities than others. My stance does not bode well with some peers.
01:06:01 Johnetta Vaughan: I love the way you have facilitated this discussion!
01:06:14 Deb Stetson: A colleague is building printable menu boards
01:06:33 Rebecca Mitchell: 'grading now, feels like grading privilege..as someone on twitter has said
01:06:56 Joe Herbert: NPR Code Switch just had an episode on reparations
01:06:59 Joyce Greenberg: Our district was offering free wifi options. I am a VPK early childhood teacher I am making youtube videos so that when a child has access it is available to them
01:07:00 Cathy Cox: We decided as a school to freeze grades at the grade the last time we saw students face to face. Students can only improve their grade.
01:07:01 Tracey Sweeney: That's why I refuse to do it Rebecca.
01:07:16 Molly Hamilton: In IL, the governor has said anything done during remote learning can only raise grades, but not lower them
01:07:35 Stacey Hatchett: @ Tracey Sweeney please say more about your grades.
01:07:36 Melissa Fotouhi: I'm refusing to require students to turn on webcams

01:07:40 Barb Everhart: thanks @molly. I'll share with my staff

01:07:41 Deb Stetson: How to get folks to have first consideration be students who our system has not engaged, rather than others.

01:07:45 Julie Wright: I'm trying to follow these guidelines in my teaching. The hardest so far is resisting pressure to move on when all aren't there. https://docs.google.com/document/d/1XJrh3L4ZK3_xq1scnDEY7dXxa3jj0szBAvBmeWKvNn4/edit?usp=sharing 01:07:46 Ann Martin: Reparation looks like what Dr. Claud Anderson talk about.

01:07:55 Tracey Sweeney: Yes Cathy, that's what my district says as well. But, I still feel it is unfair to allow some students to improve their grades while others cannot if they wanted to due to access issues, etc.

01:08:01 Barb Everhart: yes @melissa. their choice.

01:08:01 Lori Walton: No matter the plan I wrote at the beginning I have found the mechanism of student feedback the most powerful in changing the trajectory of whatever it is I am "doing to them". Without them I am lost.

01:08:20 Jacky Rodes: our quarter 3 report cards only could contain grades from before or on March 13th. no word on what quarter 4 will be based on 01:08:30 Adriene Marshall: @Lori ...feedback is the new grade!!

01:08:40 Cathy Cox: KSDE gave us an amazing guidebook for distance teaching, focusing on extending grace to our students.

01:08:44 Jolene Peterson: I'm with Adrienne. Feedback!

01:08:48 Tyrone Martinez-Black: listen to the latest Code Switch (NPR) about the global Blackness and census/reparations

01:08:50 Lara elzroui: I attended the two webinars before and i got the certificate none of them have my name on. How can i get the credit for this webinar?

01:08:51 Rebecca Mitchell: @adriene..I think that should be a thing always..post-covid

01:08:52 Linda White: Focusing on feedback and individual support

01:08:55 Brittany Marshall: That's real... that's why I think the lowest grade someone should get in this crazy time is a C

01:08:55 Charles Weber: I want to see YOUR aquestions

01:08:59 Abbey Wilson: I think it's all about flexibility -- what's right for one student or family may not be right for another. Relationships, compassion, and the willingness to set aside our own comfort so that we can do what is right by our students (and if you don't know, ask again...) is a start. Of course, we have to balance our own health (mentally and otherwise) but holding students and flexibility in the center seems a good guiding light.

01:09:01 Linda Smith: <https://justequations.org/>

01:09:02 Adrienne McPherson: We are only focusing on the students emotional needs. calling and checking in but not giving grades to anyone because not everyone has the same opportunities and resources.

01:09:07 April Thompson: I'm giving feedback, not grades.

01:09:10 John Staley: thank you for today

01:09:14 Ali Semanision: I keep letting my students know I'm trying to fill their intellectual bucket. The kids are really engaging with this.

01:09:20 Jolene Peterson: @Cathy Cox - I'm from Kansas, too!

01:09:20 Joslyn Richardson: I am.

01:09:22 Joseph Vignolini: I am

01:09:22 Rebecca Mitchell: ME!
01:09:23 Barb Everhart: ME!!!
01:09:23 Andy Mitchell: Ready to act
01:09:24 Brittany Marshall: Yes April... just feedback
01:09:27 Deepa Bharath: me!
01:09:28 stephenia courtney: I am!
01:09:30 Brittany Marshall: Ready to act
01:09:30 Sara Rezvi: ready
01:09:34 Emily Foyt: mE!
01:09:35 Fran Huntoon: ready
01:09:35 Diane Anderson: me!
01:09:36 Jasmine Howard: Ready to act!!
01:09:37 Nicole Bridge: ANNIE!!!!
01:09:39 Samantha Greco: Ready!!!!
01:09:40 Kirstin Milks: ANNIE!
01:09:41 Jennifer White: HEY ANNIE!
01:09:42 Lori Walton: Hi Annie!
01:09:42 Karen Campe: We love you too Annie!!
01:09:44 Sara Rezvi: Hi Annie!
01:09:46 Stacey Hatchett: We are in the middle of a pandemic.
Thousands are losing lives. Grades should be the least of our concerns. This is an emotional roller coaster for everyone.
01:09:47 Maggie Mariella: Walking the walk not just talking the talk.
01:09:48 Dr. LaToya Leavy: READY TO ACT!
01:09:54 Stephanie Bell: 🙋♀ I'm ready
01:09:56 stephenia courtney: Hello Annie!
01:09:58 Joe Herbert: Hi Annie!!!
01:09:58 Crystal Watson: Ready to act and needing a starting place
01:10:00 Deb Stetson: Some Teachers I work with are beginning to recognize that the grade isn't the thing that motivates. I find hope in this—they are reaching for what will engage!
01:10:33 Breedeen Pickford-Murray: Ready to act, and ready to push my colleagues!
01:10:36 Emily Kavanagh: Hi Annie
01:10:40 Alison Pepero: I couldn't agree more Annie!!
01:10:41 Erica Heinzman: Ready to act!
01:10:44 Susan Faulkner: Annie I feel the same way!
01:10:48 Karen Campe: A lot of people feel helpless to fix things these days...
01:10:49 Juanita Thomas: It hasn't I don't know everything, but I am very aware of the history of social injustice on the planet, not just here in the good old USA
01:10:52 Sara Rezvi: Tyrone!!
01:10:54 Sara Rezvi: YESSS
01:10:57 Barb Everhart: goooooo Tyrone!!! ❤️💜❤️💜
01:10:57 Kirstin Milks: HI TYRONE!
01:10:57 Samantha Greco: Yes, I see it all too often.
01:11:01 Sara Rezvi: That was powerful Annie
01:11:01 Joe Herbert: Tyrone!!
01:11:08 Lori Walton: Hi Tyrone!

01:11:09 Michele Hall: Agreed Annie. Thank you!
01:11:20 Dr. Brown: Omg Annie; you just spoke my exact sentiment.
01:11:26 Nicole Bridge: Tyrone! (It is so cool to be able to hear people's voices that I know from Twitter!)

01:11:28 Ralph Pantozzi: It's difficult to listen to people who don't look like you when you don't interact with them in the first place. New communities need to form.

01:11:29 Esther Song: Hi Tyrone! :)
01:11:30 Barb Everhart: occupation vs. vocation! yes!
01:11:32 Emily Kavanagh: Hi Tyrone
01:11:33 Cecelia Daniels: what really motivates is autonomy, building a student's confidence

01:11:42 Barb Everhart: hi Esther!
01:11:46 Deb Stetson: Yes Cecilia!
01:11:55 Aya Zvaigzne: Our district is providing a very large amount of food support, along with other items, all over the city (teachers and other volunteers) and if they don't have transportation, the food and supplies are delivered.

01:12:09 Dave Hankin: So are we..
01:12:10 Jose Vilson: Yes, @paloma!
01:12:11 Joyce Greenberg: maybe we need to be available, open and receptive.

01:12:14 Michele Hall: Great point, Tyrone. Occupation vs. vocation.
01:12:14 Aya Zvaigzne: The teachers are calling the students individually all the time.

01:12:17 Elisa Waingort: I think educators are realizing, more than ever, what is truly important.

01:12:20 Adriene Marshall: cccccckhtujrtbcncdgttukutvvtlRteglufckhfcnbj
01:12:23 Diane Anderson: great point
01:12:25 Veronica Kwok: This is so inspirational! I'm ready to act, but I feel unequipped to act! I feel like I'm just "doing it wrong" and I fall back on my own mathematics education which is very rote/memorization centered

01:12:27 Barb Everhart: THANK YOU @Tyrone!! ♡♡♡♡
01:12:33 Jolene Peterson: In Kansas we are providing meals, providing devices, but there is a disparity in internet connectivity.

01:12:34 Deepa Bharath: Thank you Tyrone!
01:12:39 Linda Smith: @Cecelia Daniels - yes building identity and agency in math is very important for our black and brown students

01:12:43 Brittany Marshall: Yaaaasss Tyrone!
01:12:48 Lynne Godfrey: Given so many of the teaching force are white women we can't afford to wait for everybody to have a "personal experience" before they can act. We all need to act because we can and must.

01:12:50 Deepa Bharath: Hey Nicole!!
01:12:51 Joe Herbert: Yay Nicole!!!
01:12:53 Maria Zavala: Wow, the $64,000 question.
01:12:56 martyanne konig: This is definitely a break in distribution
01:12:56 Lori Walton: Hi Nicole!
01:13:01 Dr. Brown: Hi Nicole.
01:13:10 Juanita Thomas: A journey back to the basics.
01:13:12 Sara VanDerWerf: I love hearing Nicole's voice again!

01:13:12 Deepa Bharath: yes
01:13:14 April Thompson: My fear is that we will go back to school in the fall like nothing happened. Like we will try to back to the way things were. That doesn't sit well with me.
01:13:15 Barb Everhart: you got this @veronica!! keep pushing forward! keep learning. we need you!
01:13:15 Deb Stetson: Trust the students! Hear ya Nicole!
01:13:16 Sara Rezvi: @Lynne - going to copy/paste bc THIS -> Given so many of the teaching force are white women we can't afford to wait for everybody to have a "personal experience" before they can act. We all need to act because we can and must.
01:13:17 Barbara Harvey: Yes I agree
01:13:18 Cathy Cox: YES!
01:13:19 Kirstin Milks: ooh. yes.
01:13:21 Stacey Hatchett: @Nicole. BINGO!!!
01:13:21 Ali Semanision: yes!
01:13:22 Jolene Peterson: YES! Nicole
01:13:24 Rebecca Mitchell: yes.
01:13:25 Shelly Jones: Wow! So true!
01:13:25 Barb Everhart: NICOLE!!!!
01:13:26 Brian Markley: Really powerful idea about control
01:13:28 Andy Mitchell: +1 Nicole
01:13:30 Elisa Waingort: Yes!
01:13:31 Lori Walton: NICOLE!!!
01:13:32 Joslyn Richardson: I just tweeted about that
01:13:32 Melissa Fotouhi: WOW! You call it out!
01:13:32 Mollie McDermott: @Nicole OMG so true!
01:13:34 Tracey Sweeney: Yes!
01:13:34 Christina Lincoln-Moore: Speak Nicole!!
01:13:35 Maria Zavala: Yes, Nicole! Getting comfortable with ceding control!
01:13:36 Melissa Soto: Boom! Yes! Giving up control!
01:13:38 Melissa Foote: Teachers are calling students and volunteering to hand out packets at the school because So many children don't have access to computers .
01:13:38 Juanita Thomas: I agree
01:13:38 Kate Mullen: I hate the word control
01:13:39 Ange Kendall: AMEN!!!! Nicole!
01:13:39 Ali Semanision: student led learning
01:13:40 Barb Everhart: Let go of power! boom!
01:13:42 Christie Nold: Totally appreciating the role of "control" -- appreciate you naming it!
01:13:44 Jasmine Howard: YES! Giving power to students is a difficult task
01:13:46 Linda Smith: Ahhh - controlling students versus listening and learning from students
01:13:47 Joy Barnes-Johnson: Whew!!!@
01:13:49 Judith Noneman: Students know far, far, far more than teachers (adults) can fathom ... teacher of the gifted here
01:13:51 Michele Hall: Yes Nicole !
01:13:56 martyanne konig: Max.

01:13:57 Dee Crescitelli: COMPLIANCE... is NOT teaching!
01:14:03 Brittany Marshall: That controlling students is real!!!
01:14:03 John Golden: Yes- let the students lead the way. Teacher as facilitator.
01:14:09 Barb Everhart: damn straight Der
01:14:11 Barb Everhart: dee
01:14:16 Christina Lincoln-Moore: GRACE!
01:14:18 Ca-Lishea Woods: I think what this situation has really shown is the limits of so much teacher-led education aka a traditional learning environment. It limits what students are capable of and what adults believe students are capable of. Parents fear personalized learning because it's not how they learned and aren't willing to let their kids show capabilities beyond what they believe is possible.
01:14:20 Mike Thayer: Grace is an under appreciated word.
01:14:23 Adriene Marshall: Read anything from Jo Boaler
01:14:24 martyanne konig: So are we done?
01:14:24 Dan Battey: Like the notion of giving grace to students.
01:14:25 Shelly Jones: Love that word, Grace!
01:14:26 Camille Greene: Amen!! Nicole about control. We all imagined that we had it all. Now, we realize that we did not have the control. We were poorly managing the students, curriculum, and instruction.
01:14:27 Linda Smith: Compliance is the pedagogy of control
01:14:30 Judith Noneman: Gifted "Instructor" ... not teacher ... open the discussion and follow them
01:14:31 Myeesha Jones: answer the question from the attendee that spoke earlier
01:14:33 Andy Mitchell: How do I find grace for leaders like DeVos?
01:14:34 Diane Anderson: give students the power is hard
01:14:37 Juanita Thomas: For many of my students this is a reality check
01:14:43 Emily Kavanagh: Grace is my daughter's name
01:14:45 Barbara Harvey: 24/7 is the new school day in a cyber world
01:14:49 Elisa Waingort: Giving grace to our students. Second time I've heard the word "grace" this week. So important.
01:14:56 Susan Nichols: I made a video teaching my 6th graders how to plan their week using Google Calendar
01:14:56 Lori Walton: Our kids are opting in and opting out and we need to pay attention to what they are saying to us and who is saying it.
01:14:59 Barb Everhart: yes @ca-lishea!
01:14:59 Cathy Cox: Too many of my students are watching their siblings or working to help their parents to attend "school".
01:14:59 Deb Stetson: Teachers can see now, that we don't have control like we did in the classroom. This can be a time to experiment and learn how to do this differently, and find out what will allow students to WANT to engage—choosing to use their own agency.
01:15:01 Judith Noneman: Giving them the power is beautiful
01:15:04 Cecelia Daniels: YES - students control their learning no matter what so we must develop a collaborative culture in the classroom or online or any way that we communicate - it transcends communication method
01:15:10 Adriene Marshall: Jo Boaler has a course called How to Teach Math which speaks to equity. Highly recommend.

01:15:17 Lara elzroui: I attended the two webinars before and i got the certificate none of them have my name on. How can i get the credit for this webinar?

01:15:21 Crystal Watson: How do we help to remove the distrust in education in order to really help create spaces where students and community can trust what they ALREADY know in order to build upon it!?

01:15:26 Juanita Thomas: Parents have become better communicators, they are now me

01:15:46 bonnie manzon: amygdala hijack

01:15:48 jeanine colwell: you put your name on it

01:15:56 Lori Walton: They are exercising AGENCY in opposition to control.

01:16:02 Joyce Greenberg: I am a pre k teacher my goal is to make children interested in learning, believing in the learning community and trusting in the safety of their learning community

01:16:16 Judith Noneman: The kids will soar with the freedom to learn and thrive in their individual and collective ... as long as they understand that learning is not optional

01:16:20 Cecelia Daniels: the educator's task is to scaffold learning and design it so students are directed toward discoveries but still make their path

01:16:43 Judith Noneman: make it meaningful ... then they thrive

01:16:55 MONICA TIENDA: The danger of a single story!

01:16:57 Melissa Fotouhi: Curious what "glows" you all have experienced during the pandemic and online instruction.

01:17:00 Judith Noneman: who are they? what do they need?

01:17:01 Crystal Watson: How do we help to remove the distrust in education in order to really help create spaces where students and community can trust what they ALREADY know in order to build upon it!?

01:17:01 Tyrone Martinez-Black: let's be careful about seeking strategy unless we feel completely comfortable with the territory of the campaign. Justice just IS

01:17:13 martyanne konig: I didn't realize how bad the information was. This is a definite cultural break and I can see it hear

01:17:15 Liz Jenkins: Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie! on youtube the danger of a single story

01:17:16 Elisa Waingort: Open up a space for students to ask questions.

01:17:16 Barb Everhart: historical context. @nr rookie just talked on haymarket books as well!

01:17:18 John Golden: Learners have to feel emotionally safe before any of this can happen, right?

01:17:33 Joyce Greenberg: Morning meeting is so important it welcomes children to be part of the community.

01:17:34 Barb Everhart: wow! yes, john

01:17:34 martyanne konig: I GOT NOTHIN

01:17:35 Judith Noneman: correct John

01:17:36 Andy Mitchell: +1 Liz love that video!

01:17:38 jeanine colwell: lara, you put your name on it. you can staple your reservation email to it if you want

01:17:58 Karen Campe: Meet your students where THEY are... YES!

01:18:23 John Golden: was surprised how much my college students liked the videos. Felt familiar, maybe?
01:18:24 Deb Stetson: Maybe we can gather student stories and work and data, about folks doing great work, where they have been showing how they are shining differently b/c the teacher started doing something differently. Like José is talking about now, looking at when they do their work.
01:18:37 Katrice Quitter: It's great!
